CHARACTERISTICS.

——Quid rides? mutato nomine, de te Fabula narratur——

COVETOUSNESS is the Contraſt of Content, and the Siſter of Envy: The covetous Man is in a State of univerſal War, for he would make Repriſals on all Mankind: He is worſe than a Woman with Child, for he longs for every thing he ſees, yet would not part with a Shilling to ſave his Longing; he has generally a ſtrange Loſs of Appetite at his own Table, for which his Neighbour's is the beſt Cure.

The MISER quarrels with the Church of Rome, for the Price of their Pardons and Indulgences; with the Church of England, for their Tithes and Taxes; but conforms to Quakeriſm, to ſave the Expence of Ruffles; all Parts of his Garments are thread-bare but his Pockets, which are generally lined with a Pocket Book, a Pencil, and a truſty Key; the ſublimeſt Joy of Life to him is the Riſe of Intereſt, and the greateſt Terror of Death the Expences of his Funeral.

The SLOVEN converts the Sleeve of his Coat to a Handkerchief, and the Skirts thereof to a Towel, wiping his Noſe in the former, and his Hands in the latter: When he ſhaves he has no Time to ſhift his Linnen, and when he ſhifts he forgets to ſhave; if he cleans his Shoes he ſcrapes the Dirt off with his Nails, and if he pares his Nails 'tis when he is at Dinner.

The SLOTHFUL Man riding ſlowly on his Journey, ſees a full Purſe on the Road, but will not alight to examine it's Contents; his Actions are mere Dreams, indigeſted and unfiniſhed, for his Life is a continued Slumber: Reſtiff and indolent he creeps heavily to the Grave, without Paſſions, without Curioſity; for he would not riſe from his Chair to ſee a Coronation, nor quit his Bed to ſave his Friend's Life.

The Man of TASTE is a fair Original; of which the FASHIONABLE Man is a finiſh'd Copy.

The Man of PRUDENCE hates Extravagance, thro' Principle; the DISCERNING Man, through Judgment.

The Man of WIT commands our Smiles; the INDUSTRIOUS Man our Purſes.

A certain Writer compares QUACKS to COBLERS; but they differ in this, a diſtreſſed Shoemaker may be a good Cobler, but a diſtreſſed Phyſician can never be a Quack; the Prudence of the Multitude ſupports a Cobler, but a Quack lives by their Ignorance: Add to this, that Honeſty and Coblerſhip are in no wiſe incompatible, but an honeſt Quack never exiſted.

The GAMESTER is a Sort of Land Pyrate, who frequents Taverns, where being ſhunn'd by his Acquaintances, he courts the Company of Strangers for Plunder; a mere Tennis Ball, whom Fortune diverts herſelf withal; for this Day he ſtrots under three Bars of Lace, and the next abſconds in the Remains of a borrow'd Shirt. This Week he revels at his Lordſhip's Table, and the next, in Company with Footmen, ſtarves in a ſubterranean Dining Room; his Diſeaſe is a Scabies of the Mind, Poverty it's beſt Phyſician, and Death it's infallible Cure.

The JEALOUS Man eſteems his Wife an Eve, and all Mankind Serpents, his own Brother not excepted; if his Wife endeavours to pleaſe him, 'tis giving Water to a mad Dog; if not, 'tis keeping it from him; the former he interprets Hypocriſy, the latter Hatred; and his Diſorder is increaſed by either: His Friendſhip is weaker than his Love, for Luſt can rekindle the latter; but the former is eternally ſorfeited for a Look, a Word, or a Whiſper.

The HYPPISH Man's Diſpoſition is ſolitary and ſuperſtitious, occaſioned by a continued Aſſociation of gloomy Ideas: He repairs to his Glaſs oftener than a beautiful Nymph, but with different Succeſs, for he leaves it eternally diſſatisfied: Being ſeiz'd with the Toothach, he diſpatches Meſſengers for a Conſultation of Phyſicians, together with a Lawyer to draw up his laſt Will; but if he has got a Lax, he dreads being laid under Water, conceiting himſelf to be the Land of Ægypt, with the Nile running thro' him.

The VALETUDINARIAN perſecutes Health as a jealous Lover does his Miſtreſs, who loſes her by teazing her: He examines his Liquor by the Laws of Hydroſtatics, and meaſures the Quantity of his Food by the Weight of the Atmoſphere. He may be known by the Furniture of his Study, which exhibits the Savour of a Horſe-Stable, from the large Quantities of his own Urine collected in Glaſſes, and ranged in Order according to Seniority: Under each Glaſs he places Notes pathognomical, and ſymptomatical, upon the Complexion, Precipitation, and Taſte of it: In one Corner ſtand Sanctorius and Blackmore, thumb'd like an old Pariſh Bible, and underneath a Magazine of Cupping Glaſſes, Clyſter Syringes, and Gallypots, together with a large Pair of Scales, where he ſits in Ballance thrice a Day, 'til Death deſtroys the Equilibre.

ENVY is Vanity with Ignorance, or Ambition with Poverty, or rather a Complication of all: The envious Man ſickens at Praiſes beſtow'd upon his Neighbour, hates his good Accompliſhments, covets his Riches, and expoſes his Errors: His Proſperity he attributes to Succeſs in Knavery, and his Adverſity to Idleneſs and Imprudence; but all his own Miſcarriages are laid at the Door of Providence. In Converſation he is the Channel of Scandal, and nothing but Defamation can make him ſmile.

Beardleſs Youth and toothleſs Old Age are the Dupes to FLATTERY, which they receive as a Lady does her Lover, with ſeeming Coyneſs, but with ſecret Satisfaction; otherwiſe, the Flatterer is the moſt aukward Villain alive, borrowing the Maſk of Friendſhip to ſo much Diſadvantage, that three Fourths of the World can ſee Deſign and Falſhood through it: But whoever is weak enough to ſwallow his Adulations, may be ſaid to light a Candle for a Robber to plunder him by.

FORWARD Men are the worſt Vermin in Society: When once they get Footing in your Houſe, 'tis harder to diſlodge them than a Colony of Rats, and they become more troubleſome than a Mouſe in your Pantry, and as familiar as a Flea in your Chamber: Give a Man of this Character his Chriſtmas Dinner, and you'll have the Pleaſure of his Company the Year round: He declares himſelf an Enemy to Compliments and Ceremony, but a Friend to good Fellowſhip; the former leads him into Impertinence, and the latter renders him Proof againſt Affronts; ſo that 'tis impoſſible to get rid of him, unleſs peradventure by introducing him to a more opulent Acquaintance.

CHOLERIC and QUARRELSOME Men are like Fire and Air, too jarring Elements, whoſe Contact produces Contention: The choleric Man is a Nation divided againſt itſelf; his Reaſon ſits tottering on it's Throne, and his Paſſions are hourly ripe for Rebellion: If he is married, his Wife may be compared to a Galley in a tempeſtuous Sea. The quarrelſome Man is induſtrious to give Affronts; the Choleric, equally ſo to receive them: An imaginary Contradiction awakens the Reſentment of the latter, but the former will tread upon your Toe to propagate Miſchief.

The RUDE Fellow is paſſionately fond of Secrets, nor can you oblige him more than by making him your Confident: His Curioſity for Secrets is like a ſickly Appetite, he ſwallows them greedily and diſgorges them the next Moment: You may know him by his exceſſive Complaiſance, and prodigious Memory; for ſo great is the former, that he will at any Time neglect his own Buſineſs to perform yours; and ſo tenacious the latter, that he can recount to you the ſeveral Marriages, Iſſues, Deaths, Burials, and Chriſtenings, that have reach'd his Ears for ſeven Years before. In his Neighbourhood he is a kind of neceſſary Evil, employed, or employing himſelf in every Thing; at Marriages a Brideſman, at Chriſtenings a Sponſor, at Feaſts a Carver, and at Funerals a Bearer; a Gazette for the Living, and for the Dead a Paſſing Bell.

HAGUE, January 5.

OUR laſt Letters from Italy intimate, that according to all Appearance the Affairs of the Kingdom of Corſica, which begin again to grow ſerious, will afford a great deal of Employment, and give much Chagrin to the Republic of Genoa. It is ſurprizing that that State, which manifeſtly perceives that this rebellious Iſland will never cordially ſubmit to its Dominion, to which the Inhabitants have an inveterate and hereditary Averſion, has not, by Sale or Exchange, parted with it, as it has had the faireſt Opportunity of doing ſo. Some ſpeculative People, who reaſon upon this Subject, think, that notwithſtanding the ſeeming Endeavours of the Marquis de Curſay, and M. Chauvelin, to induce theſe turbulent People to behave with the Submiſſion and Obedience which the owe to they Republic, there is a ſecret Underſtanding between France and ſome of the Genoeſe Senators; and that this is the prime Source of the Diſturbances which are continually ariſing in that Iſland, and which, 'tis evident, are ſcarce poſſible to be remedied any otherwiſe than by changing its Maſter. The Reaſons which theſe thinking People give for advancing Notions that may appear ſo ſtrange to thoſe eſpecially who have great Confidence in the Sincerity of his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, are, that France has apparently the Poſſeſſion of this Iſland very much at Heart, and, in all Probability, to make a Marriage Portion for Madam Henrietta, or one of the other Daughters; and that ſhe excites theſe continual Troubles in Corſica, with a Deſign that the Genoeſe ſhould be in ſuch Manner diſguſted with and weary of them, that having but little Grounds to hope for maintaining their Authority there, they ſhould be induced to expoſe the Iſland to Sale. For a Propoſition of this Nature, theſe Politicians ſay, his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty is impatiently waiting, in order to make himſelf abſolute Maſter of it; in the mean Time, ſay they, theſe Matters being well conſidered, it muſt have been a falſe Alarm which France gave the Senate, when that Crown threatened to recall its Troops from the Iſland; the beſt Thing the Republic could have then done, would have been to have taken her at her Word: By that Means, it would at once have ſeen, that the Council of Verſailles really thought of nothing leſs than of abandoning a Country, which it ſecretely looks upon as a Conqueſt which can ſcarcely eſcape it.

Poſt, (in Hungary) Dec. 12. At all Times the Jews have been hated in this Kingdom, by the Populace; but more in this Town than elſewhere, as the Roman Catholic is the only Religion publickly exerciſed here. As this Hatred expoſed them to continual Inſults, the Magiſtrates were obliged to take them under their ſpecial Protection, and decree ſevere Penalties againſt any that ſhould injure them, in any Shape whatever. Theſe Orders were renewed about three Years ago, but within theſe few Months the Mob have begun to pay no Reſpect thereto, and let ſlip no Opportunity to moleſt the Jews. Their Inſults were not confined to the poor, ragged, deſpicable Iſraelites, but reached alſo the moſt opulent; inſomuch, that a rich Trader, thinking himſelf and his Servants were in Danger, had Recourſe to the Civil Magiſtrate, for a more ample Protection; which was granted him, but attended with very ſad Conſequences; for on the 21ſt of laſt Month, at five in the Evening, one of this Jew's Domeſtics being inſulted in the Street by a Chimney-Sweeper, the Magiſtrate's Officers

Officers fell upon the Raſcal, and drubbed him ſoundly; but as they did not ſecure and commit him to Priſon, he afterwards ran about the adjacent Streets, imploring the Aſſiſtance of all zealous Chriſtians: Upon which the Mob immediately aſſembled, and ſurrounded the Houſe of the Jew Merchant, the grand Guard of the City not being able to prevent them. Their firſt Exploit was breaking all the Windows, with a Volley of Stones; after which they forced open the Door, beat and abuſed the Merchant and his Wife, who are both pretty far advanced in Years, plundered the Houſe thoroughly, and tore all his Books and Papers. This being over, they were preparing to play the ſame Pranks at the Houſes of other Jews, when the Governor ſent a Detachment of Soldiers, to keep the Peace; who fired upon the Rioters, and diſperſed them. Some of them were taken in their Beds the ſame Night, and committed to Priſon.

LONDON, January 9.

An Extract of a Letter from Utrecht, dated January 1.

"The Electoral Court of Cologne is, at length, ſet out for Munich; every Thing is on that Account in the more melancholy Situation at Bonn, as the Inhabitants of that City can but very indifferently, if at all, ſubſiſt without its Preſence; ſeveral creditable Tradeſmen have already withdrawn themſelves in order to go and ſettle elſewhere, having no Proſpect of gaining a Livelihood by a Court which very ſeldom reſides there, and which, according to all Appearance, will continue to travel from one Place to another ſo long as the Elector ſhall live and continue in Health, which probably will not be many Years, ſeeing that Prince is greatly aged, inſomuch, that thoſe People who have not ſeen him this laſt eight or ten Years would not now know him. The Oeconomy of his Houſhould likewiſe is very much changed; his Court is no longer the ſame where Benefactions uſed to be diſperſed with Profuſion; but there is now nothing more of that, excepting among Muſicians and Players, who entirely engroſs the Favour and Expence of his Serene Electoral Highneſs, which increaſes for, and is made upon them every Day more than others. It is now no more the ſplendid, nor political Court, it once was thought to be. One may reſt aſſured, that France holds it in Bands ſo firm, that neither the Elector's Journey to Munich, nor any other Meaſure that has been taken to bring him into the ſalutary Views of the Court of Great Britain, can yet make him change his Sentiments. If, ſays a Perſon in a ſenſible Letter from Cologne, the Elector ſuffers himſelf to be perſuaded to make the Tour of Munich, it is as well from the Averſion which he has for his Reſidence at Bonn, as from the Pleaſures which he will enjoy, in once again viſiting the Territories of his Anceſtors, for which he has always expreſſed a ſtrong Affection. Another Reaſon, perhaps, of his leaving ſo frequently his own Dominions, may be, the Miſunderſtanding which there is between his Serene Electoral Highneſs and his Chapter, an Inſtance of which was very recently given, when the Elector expreſſed his Deſire of celebrating the Birth of the Duke of Burgundy, by a Te Deum to be ſung in the Cathedral at Munſter, and by a Diſcharge of the Cannon of that City, it was refuſed him; but, in order to make a Shew of preſerving the Epiſcopal Authority, that Ceremony was performed in the Chapel of a Convent of Friars, where very few People aſſiſted."

Extract of a Letter from Bourdeaux, dated January 15.

"The Accounts we receive from St. Domingo of the Damage done to our Plantations by the late Hurricane, are every Day more diſmal; the Effects of it have been general all over the Iſland, and the Indigo Plants, though very low, hath ſuffered greatly, which added to the other Misfortunes it had already ſuſtained, makes the Crop of that Commodity more ſcanty than can be imagined; and it is computed, that the whole Quantity made at this Time does not exceed a Quarter Part of what uſed to be made. They had ſeveral Ships a loading for this and other Ports, but ſo few Goods, that they muſt be detained much longer than uſual, which is the Reaſon that none have lately arrived, though generally expected at this Time, and when they come, I apprehend the Quantity of Goods will be very unequal to the Demand which uſed to be very briſk in the Spring; ſo that upon the Whole, the Price of our American Products muſt keep riſing ſome Time longer."

Jan. 20. Thurſday laſt Mary Daily, prayed the Peace againſt Thomas Mears, and ſwore as follows:

"He came boldly through my Room, and I might have been murdered, and nobody the wiſer; and then a Woman came in bodily through the Room: I'll tell you her Name by and by, but I am juſtly in a Hurry. I had a bit of Fire at the Bottom of the Grate, but it would not light a Candle. He called me an old defrauding B——, and then he threatned to knock me down; and I hope your Worſhip will let me have good bodily Bail or Goal for my Life: For I will take a thouſand bodily corporal Oaths, that my Life is in Danger from that Snake there, for a Snake he is."

On Friday laſt a pretty ſingular Inſtance happened to a Gentleman in Weſtminſter, as he was ſtanding at the Door of his own Houſe; a Perſon plainly dreſs'd, with a Box in his Hand, came up to him, and told he came from the City, and was deſired to deliver it to him. Upon which the Gentleman anſwered, that he ſuppoſed he was miſtaken, for that he had no Connection in the City; but the Perſon inſiſted upon leaving it, and added, that he was ſure he was not miſtaken; he carried it down into the Kitchen, and took his Leave. Upon opening the Box, there were found a Letter, written in great Variety of Hands, to prevent a Diſcovery, and two Playhouſe Bills, in which ſomething ſeem'd to be wrapp'd: On opening the Bundle, eight Guineas were carefully conceal'd, and in the Letter was wrote, "Sir, The encloſed is yours, honeſtly yours, aſk no Queſtions, and you ſhall never know from whom this comes."

Feb. 26. Various are the Accounts of the Cauſe of the Duel fought near Marybon. Some ſay that the Quarrel was occaſioned by a Game at Cards; others, that the Diſpute happened concerning the Character of a moſt eminent Perſonage, from whom the noble Lord had received ſome Indignity, and of whom he therefore did not ſpeak with due reſpect. A Gentleman who inſpected the Wound, and underſtands the Sword, was of Opinion that it was not given fairly, as the Sword entered a little below, and backward of the Right pap, and came out again under the Ribs of the left Side. The two Boys who were at Play in the Fields, were the only Perſons who ſaw the whole Tranſaction; and the elder, who is about eleven Years of Age, ſays, that after the Captain had wounded his noble Antagoniſt twice in the left Arm, he was willing to deſiſt; but that the Nobleman anſwered, he was determined one of them ſhould die: That his Lordſhip then preſſed the Captain very hard, who thought to tire him out by ſtanding on the Defenſive; and that in a kind of retreating he unawares came to the Brink of a Ditch, where his Foot ſlipt, and his Lordſhip, with one Longe, put an End to the Quarrel, and to the Life of his Antagoniſt: That his Lordſhip then fled. He likewiſe ſays, that he purſued him, crying out Murder; his Lordſhip, threatened to kill him if he proceeded farther, and that he anſwered, he did not doubt but he could do that, as he had already committed Murder: However, that my Lord did not chooſe to ſtand a Parley, and ſoon outſtripped him. Some aver, that the Captain ſent his Lordſhip the Challenge; but others report, that his Lordſhip's Challenge, with his Name ſubſcribed to it, was found in the Captain's Waiſtcoat Pocket. The Accounts of this melancholy Affair differ, more or leſs, according as the Relators are prejudiced in behalf of one or the other Antagoniſt; but till the whole be cleared up by a judicial Tryal, it will be but Charity not to judge too ſeverely of the Living.——Captain Gray was the Brother of Sir James Gray of the County of Northumberland.

It is now ſaid that the Parliament will not riſe till April, his Majeſty's Viſit to Germany being put off for ſome time longer.

NEW-YORK.

April 20. By the Boſton Papers it appears, that on the 6th of this Inſtant April, fifty Perſons had then recovered of the Small-Pox, in the natural Way, in that Town; ſix more had died of it, and forty more were then ſick of it: And that upwards of twelve Hundred had been inoculated, and more daily adding to the Number.

We have Advice from Perth Amboy, that one of the reputed Chiefs of the Eſſex Rioters, having appeared there at the Supream Court, laſt Month, as an Evidence on a Land Trial, he was apprehended and committed; but ſome Time after admitted to Bail.——He then returned home, but in a few Days came back again and ſurrendered himſelf Priſoner, and diſcharged his Bail; and on Monday Morning laſt, upwards of 200 Men, well mounted, appeared on the Skirts of that City; when about 30 of them left the Company, and went to the Jail, where, without further Ceremony, they ſet the Priſoner free, and then rejoined their Party again, and returned peaceably back from whence they came.

Laſt Friday Night arrived here a ſmall Spaniſh Schooner with a Flag of Truce from St. Auguſtine, ſaid to be come to make a Demand of ſome Effects taken after the late Ceſſation of Arms.——(Would it be offenſive, if it were here queried, Whether the Effects demanded, and this Veſſel alſo, ought not to be ſecured, till two or three Veſſels belonging to this Place, and lately taken by theſe perfidious People, be reſtored)?

April 27. In a Letter in one of the Boſton Papers, there is a Computation made, that about Eight Thouſand Perſons will be inoculated in that Town for the Small-Pox, in this Seaſon; and the Letter Writer computes the Charge, one with another, to be about a Piſtole each; which he ſuppoſes will be a Loſs to their running Currency, of about Eight Thouſand Piſtoles, excluſive of Loſs of Time, Nurſes, &c. as that Sum will fall into the Hands only of Twenty four Phyſicians, who are no ways concerned in Trade.——It is ſaid, this Computation is of the loweſt Kind; and may ſerve to give an Idea of the deplorable Circumſtances of that Place at preſent.——Have we not Reaſon to rejoice, that whilſt we are not above one Third as numerous as Boſton, we have, on as moderate a Computation as theirs, upwards of Thirty Practitioners of Phyſic amongſt us.

A dying Lady's ADIEU to her Huſband, at a Diſtance from her.

THOU, who do'ſt all my worldly Thoughts employ,
Thou pleaſant Source of all my earthly Joy;
Thou tend'reſt Huſband, and thou deareſt Friend,
To thee, this laſt, this fond Adieu, I ſend.
At length the Conqu'ror Death aſſerts his Right,
And will for ever veil me from thy Sight.
He wooes me to him, with a chearful Grace,
And not one Terror clouds his awful Face.
He promiſes a laſting Reſt from Pain,
And ſhews that all Life's fleeting Joys are vain.
Th' eternal Scenes of Heav'n are in my View,
And tell me, that no other Joys are true:
But Love! fond Love! would yet reſiſt his Pow'r,
And fain a While defer the parting Hour.
He brings thy weeping Image to my Sight,
And ſtops my Paſſage to the Realms of Light.
But ſay, thou deareſt! thou unweary'd Friend!
Say, ſhould'ſt thou grieve, to ſee my Sorrows end.
Thou know'ſt a painful Pilgrimage I've paſt,
And would'ſt thou mourn, that Reſt is come at laſt.
Rather rejoice, to ſee me ſhake off Life,
And die, as I have liv'd, thy faithful Wife.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.

Extract of a Letter from Charles-Town, in South-Carolina, dated April 2, 1752.

"Laſt Sunday arrived here Twenty ſix Lower Creeks, Ten Upper Creeks, and Eleven Cherokee Indians. This Viſit was unexpected to ſome of them as well as to ourſelves. The two Creek Nations were at Peace with one another; but the Lower Creeks at implacable Enmity with the Cherokees. As ſoon as theſe met, they drew in Order of Battle at the old School Houſe, where the Creeks lay before the Arrival of the others, and with much ado were prevented from Bloodſhed. On this the Cherokees, being much inferior in Number, betook themſelves to the Protection of the Government, and were ſecured in the Guard-Houſe. The Governor attempted a Reconciliation between them; and a Kind of Truce was made between them Yeſterday: And the Creeks promiſed that they would not follow the others in two Days. About an Hour before Sun-ſet the Cherokees ſet out by Way of the Path (the only Road which leads up between the two Rivers) and about 4 Miles out of Town were intercepted by the Lower Creeks, who kill'd three on the Spot, the reſt they purſued, and it is imagined that five only have eſcaped, tho' there is not Certainty of more than one. After the Battle the Lower Creeks made off to Aſhley Ferry, where they arrived, and croſs'd over near Midnight, but whether with one, three, or no Priſoners, is not certain, ſo various and uncertain are the Accounts. Some Soldiers are ſent after them, but there is little Probability of their coming up with them.

I went to ſee the Dead; one old Man had his Throat cut; but I could find no Wound he had beſides; one was ſhot through the Body, and his Head was cut off; and the third ſhot through the Arm, and through the Body, and all three ſcalped."

Friday laſt the Trial of John Webber came on, when he was indicted and found guilty of breaking open the Dwelling-Houſe of Mr William Clemm, of this City, on the 24th of September, 1750, in the Night, and taking from thence a Silver Tea-pot and Tea-ſpoon; upon which he received Sentence of Death.

X 3 April 28, 1752.

RAN away from the Subscriber, living at Frederick-Town, on Sassafras River, Maryland, on the 17th Instant, the two following Servant Men; viz.

James Monk, an Indented Servant, born in this Country, about thirty Years of Age, middle siz'd, of a swarthy Complexion, and pitted with the Small-Pox; he is a well-set Fellow, much given to Liquor, and when so, a great Boxer and Wrestler; he is at all Times an abominable Lyar and Villain. Being a stout Seaman, he has been often advanced to Officers Births, on board of good Ships, by those who did not know his real Character; but was, by his ill Behaviour, always in a short Time discharged, if he did not before that run away. I took him out of Goal under an Indenture, and have advanced for him Thirty odd Pounds; tho' he has been with me but since last Fall.

Samuel Turner, born in England, about twenty-one Years of Age, a little Body, and would sooner be taken for a lusty Boy than a Man; he is at all Times very waspish and quarrelsome, but when in Liquor (which is as often as he can get it) so much so, that he is generally whipp'd or kick'd by his Companions.

They took with them a large deck'd Schooner Boat, lately trimm'd and pay'd from light Water Mark with Tar and red Paint; she is square tuck'd, her Mainmast not so taunt as her Foremast, a Scuttle forward, and a large Hatchway abaft her Mainmast, and a Pump rigg'd abaft that on the Larboard Side: She has a large Rise for a Cabin, and a sliding Door on her Roundhouse: Her Sails are old, but her Rigging mostly new, and she has a new Anchor and Cable: She is a wholesome Boat, and reckon'd a prime Sailer. They have on board some Pig Iron, which they always carry for Ballast; also a Compass, Hand-Lead, Glasses, Colours, &c. and about 90 Bushels of Wheat, with a Set of Bags, which they took from the Place where they were to have their Load. They have nothing remarkable in their Habits (which are Seamens), but that their Pea Jackets are of fine Lead colour'd Kersey, with wrought Horn Buttons, and lin'd with blue Pennistone.

THE Publiſhing all the LAWS of this Province now in Force, in one compleat BODY, being a Work agreed on by every one to be much wanted and very neceſſary, is now propoſed to be done with all poſſible Care and Diſpatch: In Caſe they ſhould not be reviſed by the approaching General Aſſembly, the Printer hereof deſigns to ſend Propoſals for Subſcriptions into every County in the Province (except this County where he lives) to be lodged with the County Clerks; and if a ſufficient Number of Subſcribers can be found to defray the Expence, which is not in the leaſt doubted, the Work will be gone about very quickly, and finiſhed as ſoon as poſſible, with an accurate and correct TABLE prefix'd. As it is uncertain how many Sheets, in a large handſome Folio and good Letter, it will make, the exact Price cannot yet be aſcertain'd; but the Subſcribers ſhall have the Whole, neatly Bound and Letter'd on the Back, at Three Pence per Sheet; to pay Twenty Shillings in Part at the Time of ſubſcribing, and the Remainder at the Delivery of the Book. If Thirty Subſcribers in each County ſhall offer, it will be gone about in the Fall, and the Books ready to deliver to the Subſcribers next Year. In this Work it is propoſed to inſert the Titles only of all ſuch Laws as are Repealed and Obſolete, as well as ſome of thoſe made on Special Occaſions, ſuch as ſome Parochial Laws of a private Nature, Priſoner's Acts of Relief, &c. and the Whole divided into Chapters and Sections: In doing which, the beſt Help and Advice will be had.
